NEWS AND NOTES

Time Trial

Saturday, August, 12, 2017

70, sunny, calm, dry ideal

COACH'S COMMENTS:

Not having a full week of practice with the first official IHSA XC day being on Wednesday created a bit of a rush for our build up for Saturday. We had some good results, but the feeling of preparation and motivation were below where we normally would be with a full week of progression. It is a reminder of how important effective mental preparation can be. We normally have a progression of mental build up in practice including more individual discussions, team talks, visualization, and goal setting that I believe lead to big performances. We will need to re-focus on these processes for our big meets to come.

Despite the short week of official practice, you guy managed to put together a phenomenal coordinated effort for the color wars. The pick up truck for the Dolphin team was phenomenal. It was the first ever appearance of dry ice. And I appreciated the gift box much more than Coach Tarjan: pearls and Hershey kisses. That's good stuff. The music was also hysterical. Cherry Berry was phenomenal. Thank you for the thoughtful flavor. The attention to detail was phenomenal. The Body Builders were slick and ready to go. I loved the dumbbells all week. The Sieczkowski parade was well orchestrated, even including future a Sieczkowski. Kenes as Skucas was perhaps the single greatest acting performance I've seen in Color Wars. Great enthusiasm. Let's remember the power of our enthusiasm.

After the color wars fun, it was time to engage in a race I anticipate for months. I set up this course on an early Saturday morning in August every year for a decade and a half. It is usually check in time after a summer of training. Dylan Jacobs blasted out in front and set the blazing opening pace. He was through the mile in a mid 4:30s. Behind him, we had massive separation immediately. But the pack of assassins was intact. At the mile mark, my thought was that if this gap could hold and the group stay together, we would be a dynamite team. Dylan continued to hammer, although the early pace and rolling solo took some steam out of him. He continued on to run 14:41, which is the all-time second best time in course history, only behind the Regional performance of Matt Withrow who would win state two weeks later and Footlocker Nationals, beating out American Record holder and Olympic silver medalist Galen Rupp in the process. To see how good this kid was, google "2003 Footlocker National Cross Country Championships". Pretty amazing race. Those who love to watch great racing would enjoy that one. So Dylan is good. But my concern was the gap after. Robbie Sieczkowski is so impressive in his ability to have a limited track season, which may deter the confidence of some, and simply continue on with confidence. Faith. It is critical. You need to believe despite the fact that I guarantee there will be reasons for you not to believe. But our pack of assassins seemed to crumble. We needed our five to be one minute behind Dylan, so essentially, we need to be wrapping up the pack of assassins where Nico was. So what do we need for this group? Go back to our pillars and redo them over and over again. Be brave...again. Be accountable...again. Etc. You get the idea. A race is a relentless renewal of effort in these areas. And don't be satisfied with being in the top 7 or being our second runner or third, etc. It's not a good goal. There is absolutely no reason Nico should be 1:14 behind Dylan and there is absolutely no reason our #5 should be :35 behind Nico...unless we were simply all too satisfied to simply be in a scoring position. Griffiin Lehnhardt had a fantastic freshman time. It puts him into one of the all-time best freshman time trial times category. I know he's not satisfied though, which will be part of what makes him great. Alex Miller was definitely a highlight as well. Take a look at his improvement from last year. He drops 3 minutes! Awesome start! Our freshmen have a great group and am I really excited to see where they go. Any time a freshman breaks 20:00 at Time Trial, I am super excited. We had four! Lastly, I want to talk about Ava Giblin. Seeing Grant and Ava running on their own last week at the trails, I invited her to participate. She was going to think about it. Surely it would be intimidating: she would be racing against high school aged boys, most of whom she doesn't know. I wasn't sure if she was going to participate. Ava took it on and raced her heart out, never showing any sign of intimidation or fear. It's not that those emotions may not have been present, but she found a way to get her mentality to compete with no fear or hesitation. Courage is a muscle that grows strength when it used.

Well, one thing is for sure: I left the parking lot on Saturday thinking that where our goals are and where we are at are two different places. I am processing the concept that guys expressed extremely high team goals and yet had individual goals extremely below what would yield those team goals. I don't really understand that concept. If you have big goals as a team, there needs to be big individual expectations to make that a reality. I did not see that on Saturday. I did not see that in the second half of the race and I did not see that when guys talked about their level of satisfaction with their results. A state championship is currently off the table for us. No one has the right to bring that up as a goal at this point. If things change, as far as our individual expectations goes, then the team goals can be discussed again, but we are not in the vicinity of that kind of talk. All that is is talk. And one thing I made clear in Wisconsin is that I hate talk.

Having said that, there were some really great things that happened on Saturday. Our energy was high. Our enthusiasm was great. We were super together (before the race, not so much during and after. Guys—pre-race cohesion is great, but real cohesion shows itself during stressful and challenging moments). We had a great alumni turnout and it reminds us that we are responsible for this team for this fall. We are a part of something so much bigger than ourselves. And if I can sum up things as best as possible, that would be it: we need to embrace the enormity of our individual responsibilities for something that is so much greater than we are individually. I close in giving you a quote from a book I read last year called Peak: Secrets from the New Science of Expertise, by Anders Ericsson. “The reason that most people don’t possess these extraordinary physical capabilities isn’t because they don’t have the capacity for them, but rather because they’re satisfied to live in the comfortable rut of homeostasis and never do the work that is required to get out of it. They love in the world of ‘good enough.’” Let’s make sure we never allow ourselves to dwell in the world of good enough.

Please note that this is what makes us a great team. Xander Furmanek ran 23:46 as a freshman and finished 51st place. He is now 16:30 and 5th place. That is the story of where we find our greatness. We always focus on improving. Some may say that Xander is a rare case, not the norm. Surely someone like Dylan Jacobs came in blazing fast. He was good, no doubt about it. His freshman year time trial time? 17:30. Exceptional for a freshman. But he’s now 14:41, almost three minutes faster. It’s tough to drop three minutes at that level. And that’s the key. It would have been easy for Xander to be excited about 18:00. It would have been easy for Dylan to be excited about 15:30. They didn’t stop there, and they can’t stop there now—they need to continue to think bigger. And so do we all.

NEWS AND NOTES

RUNNERS OF THE WEEK: Tommy Sieczkowski, Jacob Coleman

Reavis Invitational
Saturday, Sept. 19, 2017
70, new course

COACH'S COMMENTS:

The main concept we talked about Friday evening was using the day as an opportunity to express our true courage. I told a few stories of guys who used the Reavis Invitational to show some real guts. None of the stories I told involved guys who actually won the race. But they displayed character in their running. They risked big—and in smart way. Smart, gutsy, brave. When you race like that, you inspire people. To that end, we decided not to take splits. It was time to race. The data we collected instead was about competing: how you progressed throughout the race, how you fought, and how you finished out what you started.

The F/S race went off and we immediately were the aggressors. I was really excited to see the intensity of the guys from the start. Here we were putting Lyons and the rest of the field on defense, and also putting ourselves in a tough spot: we would need to dig deep to deal with the intense start for the remainder of the 3 miles. First of all, they didn't just stop there. They kept pushing for the front all the way through the forest area and to the mile mark. And here was a big time test: how would they respond after a fast opening, hitting a hill and half the race still to go? And it was here that I started getting really excited about our day. Tommie Sieczkowski was hammering up the hill. A freshman, stepping up into the sophomore level and showing no respect. I love it. He was making it hard on himself and refused to back off. Following him up the hill was Ian McGrath, also having a huge day, absolutely working up that hill. Alex Miller and TJ Cosler also were blitzing up the hill. Not too far back, Diego Hernandez was rolling, much tighter to the group than last week. And Amad Alhayek rounded out a really exciting F/S group. I couldn't have been more excited at this stage of the race. I only wondered how we'd handle the final mile as the boys raced away from me toward the wooded loop. Entering the final 800 meters and the hill, the boys were still hammering away, maintaining their aggression, despite some obvious fatigue. We renewed our efforts. And again and again. It was the race of the season so far. These guys did exactly what I hoped for: they inspired. In the varsity race, our young guns continued to define the day. Three F/S guys led the way. We let the front runners from Marist and Stagg get away early, something that, when you look at the final results, could have been better—an early commitment could have resulted in staying connected and giving yourself a shot to close it out. Otherwise, we were running from behind and allowing them to dictate. However, Ben Giblin excelled and refused to allow the gap to widen. In fact, he cut the gap down in the final mile, putting himself within :10 of what would be a strong fifth runner for us on the varsity level that would have helped us win at Lyons. Will Giblin and Griffin Lehnhardt fought hard in these spots as well, once again showcasing how tough our young guns are. It was really tough racing in their first varsity experience. In the open race, we had some major highlights. The first came from Jack Fornaris. His move was so motivating to our team that people mentioned it at least a dozen times in the post race recap. Putting humor aside, this is precisely what I described the day before the meet: when you race in a way that shows courage, especially courage in the most difficult moments, people are inspired by it. There is no way to quantify what this does for a team. If you have a culture of bravery, then it fuels itself and becomes the standard. I want more and more of this. Jack's mid-race move was to go all in and pass a pair of LT racers and get himself suddenly toward the front of the race. He went from defense to offense. It's as simple as that. This move then motivated Miles Appellido who responded and rallied back up to Jack and closed out in a great finish as well. And we had one of the races of the day from Jacob Coleman who had the look of a competitor the whole race. Take a look at his movement throughout the race, grinding away and passing juniors and seniors. He just out-toughed them, plain and simple. Jeffrey Spaagaren also was fantastic in this race. He lost some spots throughout the race. But he clearly was looking to do something special by committing early and he fought throughout the race to maintain that early commitment.

In the end, what I am describing to you is the difference between letting life happen to you and you determining life. Life doesn't determine champions; champions determine life. And that's what I hope for with each of you. It's so easy in life to sleepwalk. It's so easy in life to be passive. It's so easy in life to "get through" your day. It's so easy in life to say things like, "I have to wake up early tomorrow." How about you get to wake up tomorrow? How about you don't just "get through" your day or your race, but you live it. Instead of letting others determine how your day goes, how about you determine how your day goes? Races are an expression of this mentality. So often the gun goes off and we let other runners dictate how the race goes. You "settle in" and "get through" the race. Much like life, that kind of racing is so uninspiring. And much like life, those who wake up in the morning and decide for themselves how the day is going to go is so rare...and so worth cheering for...and those are the stories we remember.

TIDBITS:

- ✓ Thanks to the parents, family and friends who have been coming out to the meets and showing support.
- ✓ Saturday is the Peoria Notre Dame Inv. Travel time is approx. 2.5 hours. We will also be spending a little time on state meet strategy after the race, so we will not be getting back until early evening (more precise timeline is forthcoming). We can only take 50 of our 65 guys due to bus restrictions.
- ✓ Awesome job showing up to the Jane Caliendo 5k to show your support for the school and the Caliendo family!
- ✓ Great job with the finish line—you guys were a great sight at the finish chute.

WHAT'S NEXT: Goals for Peoria: Some of the best runners in the state are there. Tear em up and send them home. We will continue to focus on offensive mentality and competing

SANDBURG
CROSS COUNTRY

NEWS AND NOTES

RUNNERS OF THE WEEK:

Peoria Notre Dame Invitational
Saturday, Sept. 16, 2017
88 degrees and sunny

COACH'S COMMENTS:

The first thing I really liked about our racing on Saturday was our fearless aggression. It was really hot, which we all know logically would hit us throughout the race. Knowing this, we still went right to the front of all three races. This is in stark contrast to the strategy of Neuqua Valley. Their coaches advised their team to hold back and take advantage of people falling apart later in the race due to heat. This makes sense...only if our goal on Saturday was to win in the Peoria Invitational, which it never is. We are constantly in a process of improvement of all aspects of being a stronger runner. Yes, a more sensible approach would have been a conservative opening on a hot day. If it were the SWSC meet or the state meet, we would have considered this approach. On Saturday, we were looking to stare the huge meet and the great competition in the face and take it to them. We wanted to believe in our greatness. This meant taking a step and being bold. This was the main mentality we've been focusing on. It is a mentality I believe will determine our success this season. And you guys were bold.

I am beyond thrilled with that. The varsity opened up first and we blitzed through 800. Dylan Jacobs was rolling with a 2:09, which is the opening pace Lukas Verzbicas has when he ran 13:53 and is the opening 800 the 2015 group had when they had to beat everyone to the first turn from box 4. It's fast. The opening straightaway at Detweiller is a long 500 meters of monitoring on your part. It's a long stretch of aggression and being alert to the competition before things organize around the turn. That's check box number 1 at Detweiller. Xander Furmanek was hammering right behind Dylan. Xander has always been an amazing teammate, a hard worker, a tough competitor and great human being. This year, I am seeing all that, but add in some swagger and temerity. He's bold this year. I love it. He's not waiting. He's the one in the driver's seat. It's inspiring to see someone who has found that drive. As tough as Xander has been in the past, I don't think we would have seen someone with that kind of confidence and belief going to the front of the PND Invite. We see it now. And he never relented. Even after the hard opening, he was tough enough to be passing in the final 800. Xander passed 5 people from 2.5 to 3. This is a very big deal. Xander doesn't necessarily possess the greatest 400 meter speed or 800 meter PR. It doesn't matter. If you are strong enough and decide to be tough enough at that late stage, you can get it done. We train in a way where we are always doing something fast to finish workouts. You all have this capacity. I also know that it is not easy. It's really hard to do what Xander did. We all envision ourselves launching into enormous kicks at the end of races. No one believes they are going to let themselves get passed. But it's hard. A few things going on: You are often going to get passed by someone or even multiple runners. This means you start feeling negative feedback "I'm getting passed. I'm dying" etc. You have to be ready to counter that negative feedback. Have a calming conversation with yourself. "People are rolling. Keeping it together and start competing. Make a pass. Go to work." Focus on form and execution—high knee lift, tall shoulders, head and eyes up, being relaxed and fluid and force application into the ground. The worst case scenario is that you get passed by 2-3 people instead of 10. Every year I see people who completely have a mental catastrophe. That means that they catastrophize their situation and it starts a domino effect of panic, physical distress, bad form, and complete breakdown. Some guys even fall down...it's because they've had a cascade of negativity that produces negative hormones (cortisol) which adds to the physical fatigue, and then goes from there to a physical and mental breakdown. We need to be better than that.

Control the controllables. If you are going to get smoked by someone who has saved too much for the finish, fine. But you need to own your race for a FULL three miles. That means you are the pilot. And in the final straightaway, you are giving your best effort in all areas, including FOCUS and effective RESPONSE to negative thoughts and feedback. The other element is that a kick is simply sucking it up and accepting the pain. Tom Brennan famously said that you don't have to be fast to beat people in the final straightaway.

To give you an example of how big of a deal this is: Xander passed 5 guys in the final 800. Our three guys in scoring position behind him were passed by a total of 36. We lost 36 points on three guys in the final two minutes. If we manage this even remotely better, we surely beat Plainfield South who beat us by 3. B Giblin and W Giblin closed in 2:41 and 2:43. Our varsity scorers were well behind this. Once again, you don't need great 800 meter speed to do this. But here is a bigger statistic. If we view the final 800 as an opportunity to chop some heads—after all, it is the only point in the race where making passes definitively means points for your team, and we do what Xander did, and make a couple passes, then we have a 51 point swing. Instead of adding 36 points, we make five passes each and drop 15 points. That's 51 points and that's from three guys in a half mile! That's a major difference.

Having said all that, while we can work on that finish, for Saturday, I am much more enthusiastic about the way you guys competed and how bold you were. That's the look of a good team.

Meanwhile, Dylan has a low close as well, but put together a similar race as our other guys: phenomenal until the final segment. We also need to get Eddie Slack healthy and we are committed to figuring that out. We have some time to get that right.

The gun went off for the sophomore race and I was really curious and excited to see how we'd handle to race. This was our state meet. There we were, right to the front. Both Giblins blasted to the front, running PRs in the 800, and took the bull by the horns. This was belief. One year ago, they were 121st and 122nd in the sophomore race at PND. They followed that up with a year of preparation. Those guys put in the work in the winter, spring and summer. But that's not enough. It needs to be accompanied by confidence and courage. They had it. To commit to that pace that early, to find their way to the front, and then to see it through to the 2.5 marker where they were suffering was a thrill to watch. Then...they battled. BGibs was passed and was in 2nd place with 800 to go. At this point, 99% of runners would do one of two things: try to hang on for 2nd or worse, start thinking they are "dying" and simply want to race to be over with. They'd get passed by a few more people, get their 6th place medal and be proud of themselves for taking 6th. BGibs was in the 1% of athletes: he fought back. Most people view a cross country race like a fight, but they view it like this: I'll throw an upper cut and that should do it. We need to view the race as a 12 round fight...you keep answering the bell and you keep swinging. Leading for 2+ miles is exhausting. Getting passed is disheartening. But Gibs had nothing but heart. He fought back, truly attempting to win the race back. He didn't get the guy, but he came really close and as a result he finished his true best. I want him and others to internalize that: to fight for the win is one thing, and it's truly motivating to see the win there and go for it. If B Gibs and other can have that mentality when they are in the thick of a pack, not quite certain what their place is, and be as hungry for positions as one is when they are trying to win, then we will be tough to beat. Both Gibs suffered and kept on offense. They both earned varsity projections for the state meet and they both will get opportunities at that level soon. What great examples for our team on a number of levels. Giffin Lehnhardt and Tommy Sieczkowski put together phenomenal races as well. I was so excited seeing Griffin riding out the top 10 for the majority of the race. What a gutsy performance for a freshman in such a big meet. Likewise, Tommy was in the 20s the whole race and fighting hard. Their times are super impressive given the conditions. When the 2015 State Champion crew were freshmen in 2012, here is how they did at PND. It was low 70s and calm: 1. O'Fallon-68 2. Sandburg-82 3. York-127. We never saw O'Fallon at the front of the pack again. We went on to dominate. But they outworked everyone in the state and were relentless competitors. Here are their freshman times on a perfect day and their senior year time on the same course: Brennan—15:55/14:45, S Torpy—16:05/14:24, M Lehnhardt-16:39/14:36, Laskero-16:42/14:50, P Sieczkowski-17:21/DNR—est. 15:20. Gleisner-18:02/15:07, Lukas-19:07/14:54. That puts Griffin and Tommy in pretty good company on a much hotter day. But the only thing that matters is that this is a starting point. I can show you more examples of people with those times who didn't do the work to become great. I'd certainly add Ismail Tineh to that crew as well. Wow. He has a lot of talent. All those kids were at summer camp and put in a ton of work before their freshman years. To see Tineh racing so well showcases a talent and a confidence that I've rarely seen. If he commits to this team and joins track and our summer camp next year, I would be surprised if he didn't run 15:00 as a sophomore. And his competitiveness is his real strength. Look at how many passes he made in that race! That's the stuff of champions. And I just love TJ Cosler and Ian McGrath. Those guys are phenomenal. Cosler's leadership, poise, determination...he just amazes me on a daily basis and he's someone who makes a good team great. McGrath is as relentless as they come. You know he maximizes his ability. It's character. It makes me really excited about this season and the future. Certainly, we have more guys who are really important to the future of this team and the success of the sophomore level this year. All of us need to be all in.

And I also wanted to highlight Ben Williams. What an amazing progression for him. He had a rough stretch last year of health and luck, but he is looking strong and hungry. Running sub 20:00 was a huge goal of his and I could not be happier for him. He is so dedicated and is one of the people who adds a lot of fuel to our fire.

Finally, I must point out that Mario was dominant as a bus driver. The performance compared to bus driver John and the Starlight Bus Company a year ago was extraordinary. Mario is a runner of the week because we didn't spend four hours in Henry, IL.

TIDBITS: »THANK YOU for the picnic!

WHAT'S NEXT: Big week of training. Next week we have a big week with our F/S hitting the Andrew F/S Invitational.

COACH'S COMMENTS:

I've never been so excited in my whole life. What a great week! We have been targeting this week for a while now. There were multiple factors in play: the weather finally broke from the oppressive heat, our training has accumulated multiple weeks of race pace emphasis, and we scheduled training this week to enable some race sharpness. But what's most important is the ways in which we displayed character this week and made our team better. Character: adaptability, bravery, competitive fire, team cohesion. Also, character displayed in our willingness to show up and put in work and the little details without any fanfare. There is tremendous integrity in someone who shows up and does those things without any attention or reward. That same mentality shows up in the middle of a race where you put in a huge effort that few people are going to notice. But that's all the difference in the world. We saw that kind of mentality from Matt Carlson who laid down the law in the woods decided to suffer more than those around him. We see in TJ Cosler on a daily basis. He's a leader. He does things that won't be published in a newspaper. He brings two watches and two lacrosse balls to practice every day. Does he need two of those for himself? Clearly not. He's perpetually focused on making his team better. He cleans up because he has integrity. No one is watching and he acts with character. The Superfanz will not come out to cheer for Cosler bringing two watches to practice. But that's integrity. That's character. That lasts. Trophies. Retweets. Newspaper articles. Those are nice, but they're not lasting. They are forgotten, they gather dust, they lose relevancy. Character lasts. Ahmed Alhayek showed the mentality of a champion this week. He saw that the rewards for the Andrew race were not something that he would find rewarding. He put the pressure on himself to do more. He put the pressure on himself to have a higher standard. He came through. I am so excited for his future as an Eagles XC runner. Dylan Jacobs did the same. There are other people's standards out there—there will be talk about Craig Virgin and his state record in the next month. That last sentence is the last time I will mention that name. He's irrelevant. With five weeks to go, I plan on everyone getting more than :7 faster. So that's what Dylan's focus is...he's not living up to someone else's standards. That's irrelevant. That mentality was present in that race. Two weeks ago confirmed to him that he had the ability to break the ever elusive 14:00 barrier. I hope if Dylan is ever asked about the record he will simply respond by saying, "Why would I ever focus on what someone else's best potential was?" We can do much better. We can find our best potential. Beyond that, I'd like everyone to appreciate for a moment the historical significance of Dylan's accomplishment: 14:00 is a barrier that the most elite of the elite in the history of the state have been chasing. Olympians have fallen short. Only five runners have legitimately broken the barrier—all of them did it in the state meet. In doing so, Dylan became the fifth fastest runner in Illinois history and the only one ever to achieve that in an invitational. Amazing. Likewise, Griffin Lehnhardt took to the front of both of his races. He is putting himself up there and convincing himself he's going to win races. I love that mentality. His performance at Andrew showed more courage than his competitors and more toughness late in the race. They were unwilling to suffer like he did in the final mile. He slammed the door shut on them by hammering before the final downhill. His mindset is a rare one. Finally, our other runners of the week were Sammy Rodriguez and Nico Calderon. Sammy was phenomenal. He committed to it early—blasting through in 2:15 and kept rolling. I mean, he just had courage out there. He wanted to make his team better. Sophomore PRs at Detweiller Park: Chris Torpy—15:26, Max Lehnhardt—15:37. Sammy's performance puts him 9th all time on our sophomore list. 15:12 would move him past all-time greats Tom Brennan and Kevin Adamowski into 6th. 15:04 would put him only behind sub 14 guys Verzbicas, Graves and Jacobs. But mostly, I admired his fearlessness. Nico had a different strategy but was confident in it and executed really well. He managed to come back from some disappointing performances the first two races to go all in on this one. That takes courage. That takes confidence. On the whole, our Peoria group did exceptionally well in being courageous and cohesive. We were feeding off of each other better than we ever have. We looked like a great cross country team out there with guys challenging the group the entire time and people actually responding and renewing their efforts and focus.

This week was an amazing week. We had some great energy. What I saw on Thursday was phenomenal. We had our juniors and seniors getting fired up and bringing energy to the freshmen and sophomores. When we surveyed the team on Friday, we realized that they made our team better. We had freshmen and sophomores who stepped up in roles. Jacob Coleman was out on Thursday---a terrible blow to our team. Guys stepped up. Guys owned the race from the gun. Once again, we were on offense. Tommy Sieczkowski once again taking it to people right away and fighting them off late. Anthony Malysz showing how great he can be in this sport. What an amazing performance with just a couple weeks of training under his belt. In the sophomore race, Alex Miller had to step up with the Giblins and Rodriguez out. I love it. We don't want one so-called number one runner. Great teams have a bunch of guys who think of themselves as number 1's. We saw that from Miller who took to the front. Ian McGrath continued to be a reliable guy and Diego Hernandez ran a phenomenal race with Carson Bruce also committing to being a strong scorer for us early and gutting out late in the race. Just all sorts of cohesion, courage and competitiveness present from the whole team. The energy was obvious. We took that energy to St. Charles and Peoria. There is one thing we can do from here: decide to have that commitment to our team and ourselves for the final stages of the season. Let's make each other better. Let's have an answer to our two questions every day: how did you display character, how did you make your team better?

Quotes of the week/year:

"Someone pick up that water bottle that everyone just keeps kicking around" --TJ Cosler

"How'd the rest of the cooldown go? Are we gonna win some trophies or what?—coach

"We decided to win a championship, Coach"—Ismail Tineh

"We didn't need that cooldown to figure that out."—Cosler

"Coach, why do they give out 100 medals at this meet tomorrow?"--Ahmed

"Well, I guess they want to support and encourage as many runners as possible."

"I don't like that."—Ahmed

"Well, if you want a better goal, I think they call up the top 10 or 15."

"I'm going to make sure I get that medal."—Ahmed

I shared these thoughts with mileplit on Saturday. I wanted to showcase a little insight into our team's mindset. I hope we continue to take on the mindset of champions. I hope we continue to have no respect for limitations and barriers.

These races serve as progressions of putting together our optimal races. Two weeks ago our strategy had nothing to do with an optimal strategy for that specific race. It was setting up this performance, and more importantly, later performances. Dylan was building a mental model for future success. In fact, it was a poor strategy given the hot conditions. But it was essential to Dylan's progress and the team's progress. Yesterday was more of a complete race, but it was still setting up future performances more than optimizing the race yesterday. His fast opening set the tone for the race and expressed Dylan's mindset. 4:31-9:11. Dylan loves to hurt and compete. He's fearless. He doesn't get too worked up about races, he just loves it. He has a mindset that is so rare. I'm continually in awe of him. I've learned a lot from him.

I also know that simply because someone has a physical capacity to do something that doesn't mean they have the mental capacity to do it. 14:00 is a barrier. There are all sorts of barriers.

And here is what we've concluded at Sandburg: we don't break record, we break limitations. I've been absurdly lucky enough to coach "record" breakers. And here is where the magic in those performances lies:

It's not about workouts or the most optimal splits (that stuff matters), but the most important factor that differentiates the so-called record breakers from the rest is that the record breakers have an unrelenting rejection of physical, mental and emotional limitations that inevitably present themselves in life.

So, I can tell you that Dylan Jacob's 13:57 is a materialization of his unwillingness to put limitations himself. We have a healthy disrespect for the record books. Why? Records are limitations. We don't respect limitations. Teenagers especially are hammered with all sorts of social and emotional limitations. What they can and cannot do. What's cool or uncool. What's worthy of attention. What toughness looks like. We reject that narrative on our team. That's not where we live.

With that in mind, Dylan's progress is not about Verzbicas or Graves because that sets up barriers and limitations. Those guys, that Sandburg tradition is a huge motivator and a part of our team's identity. We are very proud of that. But our focus will be on Dylan's progress and Dylan's limits. The same goes for the rest of the team. Like any runner, we are planning on improving over the next five weeks and have no interest in an arbitrary record setting up the expectation for that progress. We create our own.

TIDBITS: >>Warm clothes required for practice >>Wash your hands, get enough sleep. >>We will be deciding a limited post season roster and will invite people to continue running by the end of the day at conference.

WHAT'S NEXT: A great week of training. Course preparations.

This final 800 meter tap out is not acceptable. We literally were beaten by Mundelein in this last 800. That's the difference between trophy and no trophy. Qualifying and not qualifying.

St. Charles Frosh/Soph

Weather: Perfect 58 and sunny

Race: St. Charles was the perfect place to test both goals of the day: character and make your team better. This frosh/soph team went to the line with every intention of showing their character. Right from the starting line, Sandburg Eagles ran right to the front of the pack, knowing they had to get in good position before the course got tight. At the mile Griffin Lehnhardt put himself in second place with a 5:21 against a competitive field and looked strong. The rest of the team worked with cohesion in mind: Tommy Sieczkowski and Alex Miller ran together at the mile in 5:33; Ian McGrath, TJ Cosler, Ismail Tineh, and Diego Hernandez all came through the mile together from 5:38 - 5:45; another pack of Anthony Malysz, Ahmad Alhayek and Carson Bruce came through from 5:40 - 5:53. All the way through our team of 21 runners this working together was obvious through the mile -- Rami Suhail and Andrew Rohan came through together at 7:24 and 7:25; James Drnec put on a surge to run through the mile with Jacob Skoczen. And then it was into the woods where, as Coach Tarjan told to the team, is where real character is shown. As they popped out of the woods, Griffin was holding on to a strong 6th place finish, although as is his character, was not content with his finish and has every intention of making it even faster next race. That's the attitude we need from each and every runner through the next two weeks and through conference. We saw more of that same killer attitude from our other runners. Alex Miller, or as Coach Tarjan said -- Man on a Mission, raced to a 13th place finish and Tommy S. took a top 25 place by finishing in 22nd. The Ian McGrath -- TJ Cosler finish brought about one of our best examples of competitiveness and making your team better. These two have been pushing each other through all of their races this year, and they came racing down the final straightaway each competing fiercely -- TJ working to pass Ian and Ian racing faster and faster not willing to just give him the position. TJ ended up with the edge in this race; our whole team won in the process. Michael Molloy contributed one of his best races; he worked the whole race to keep pushing himself up on the position of our team. A whole lot of guys raced to PRs today; among them, Indy Hauter took another minute off his best and Jacob Skoczen knocked off over 2 minutes. This is a team that we have been really happy with all year for their competitiveness and their bravery in racing -- keep it up all the way through to make some big things happen.

How did you make your team better?

Here were some great answers.

- Griffin, Tommy and Ismail talked about where they thought was the most difficult part of the race was; then after taking all of the extra clothes from the start line of the open race and bringing it to the tent, they went out to that place in the race (around the 2.5 mark). There they cheered on their team right from the point that they thought they would need it the most.
- Gavin Burns raced right by Danny Dederowski and said "Come on Danny, let's go" and pulled Danny with him, pushing Danny to a great race.

St. Charles Varsity

Race: There was a great deal of energy with this group going into the race. This group felt a lot was on the line for this race both personally and for the team -- whether it was a senior racing at St. Charles for the the final time or an athlete working to make a statement for the top 7 or post-season team, these runners felt the weight of it going into the race. Ben Walter got out to a great start, bravely competing right from the get-go at the 400 and with a 5:19 mile and in a tightly packed 38th place. This was truly good position to be in -- it would take a mental toughness to hold on to that place and give yourself good feedback. That is the biggest area to work on for Ben as we approach the next two weeks. Patrick Morris had one of the best complete races for the varsity today -- he moved well throughout the race and out fought Peter Bukiri at the end. Peter and Patrick working together was definitely the type of work we need to see. Remember that bravery is a skill that you must practice, and re-practice, and re-engage in. People seem to mistake going out in a blaze of glory the first 400m or unleashing a fierce sprint at the end as being "brave" or "gutsy". But we know, like Coach Tarjan masterfully said, bravery is what happens when nobody is watching you. When you are in the middle of the woods and the only sound you hear is your own panting breathes. Those are the moments when you see what kind of character you have. Are you making every second hurt, for yourself, for your team, or are you just surviving.

How did you make your team better?

Here are some good answers.

- Connor Devlin came to the start line of the frosh/soph race to give all of them advice and a pep talk.
- Morris worked with Bukiri all through the race to push him through to a strong finish.

St. Charles Open

Race: Matthew Carlson with the best final mile of the day showed how willing he was to hurt. He went from 201st place at the 2mi mark to 169th place at the finish, dropping a 6:26 third mile and nearly missing sub-20. This was a gain of 32 places in the final mile. When we saw him coming down the final straightaway he was absolutely burning down the barn! He did that all alone in a small trail behind acres of trees and tall grass. Guts. Some are very vocal about what their goals are and make bold statements, and others just let their performance speak for itself. That is Carlson's style.

Like Carlson, there were others who worked at gaining places; Jeffrey S. picked off at least 4 guys in that final finish surge; Chris Pearson moved up 9 in the final mile, Matt Sak with 6 in the final mile. Matt Sak and Jeffrey made that happen by working together through the race, as did Sam Lane and Marcello Claire, who were working to push each other throughout the race. It was great to see John Cunningham running more of the race that he was capable of this week -- keep at it, John!

How did you make your team better?

- After single-handedly getting the tent from the bus to our camp, Eric Kenes also took splits on the Frosh/Soph race and was the only one to get to the start of the varsity race.

NEWS AND NOTES

RUNNERS OF THE WEEK: R Siczkowski, Patrick Morris, F/S first 5, Matt Sak

SWSC @ Lockport E Campus

Saturday, Oct. 14 and Monday, Oct 16, 2017

Rain.

COACH'S COMMENTS:

Wow. I couldn't have written a more appropriate way for us to conclude our full team season. We had everything involved in the SWSC Championships that we've focused on all year long. We've talked a lot about character this year. We had it on Saturday and Monday. It was waterproof character. And what went into this?

Accountability: To have this kind of result, we've needed accountability among each other throughout the process. In order to be adaptable and brave and competitive and develop the trust to be cohesive, we needed to know we were doing things for each other. We were making the right decisions in and out of practice. We called each other out when someone didn't and we accepted criticism when we heard from each other. One guy who has been driving the bus for our team this year is Matt Sak. I could count on him as a team leader and to keep track of the younger runners and to always be in there in any way he can support the team. He is always asking himself how he can make this team better.

Adaptability: we didn't even blink an eye or hesitate with the changes to the meet. The course changed the day before even though we'd surveyed Dellwood three times? No problem. The time schedule changed less than 45 minutes before the varsity race? We'll problem solve and work through our warm up. The rain and lightning caused a delay and uncertainty. Our guys prepared in the fieldhouse and were ready to compete. The meet was postponed to Monday evening? Ok, we'll adapt. We'll put in a Sunday pre-meet day and be ready to go. Within the race, we had to adapt endlessly. The course was not one we could anticipate and visualize, the competition was strong in the F/S race, the varsity had all these individual battles. We adapted with problem solving, emotional discipline and no excuses. That was what made us great.

Competitive: I've never seen such an exciting race in my whole life as the F/S race. I've been to 7 or 8 national championships, state championships, all that. And I can honestly say that watching that F/S race was the most excited I've been. Seeing those guys just flat out compete the whole three miles was inspiring. In the varsity race, Robbie Siczkowski went right after the 2nd spot and competed for three miles with the LWE kid. The Gibblins likewise were battling the whole way and launched a great kick in the midst of a small pack of racers. Seeing guys like Anthony Malysz, Noah White, Indy Hauter, Michael Molloy, Naail Chaundry, and Dan Dederowski fight throughout the second half of the F/S race and race their way to their best performances of the year makes me really excited about the future of those freshmen. Xander Furmanek and Patrick Morris were running in the 23:00+ for 3 miles as freshmen. They worked their butts off for four years and became varsity guys. Those five could become phenomenal if we see that kind of commitment from them. In speaking of Patrick Morris...wow. That guy is amazing. He went all-in with 800 to go and had no regard to his own discomfort. He ran an all-time PR in this race and was so impressive, as he has been for four years. I've always admired his toughness. August 23, 2014, Color Wars: 50. Patrick Morris—23:44, 51. Xander Furmanek—23:46

Brave: Robbie Siczkowski had the mindset that he was going to be at the front of this race. He had no fear of the discomfort that would come with a fast start and an aggressive race plan. He kept pressing the gas pedal as he battled throughout. He stepped up his game and his positive expected outcomes and it showed mid race when it got difficult. He kept pressing, seeing it through. This was a huge step for our team. Robbie is well ahead of where he was a year ago and always seems to show up in big ways when it counts the most. Ismail Tineh. We've noticed for a while that this guy has the ability to be an all-time great in this sport. And he's been coming along week by week. About halfway through the race, Lockport had the first six spots! I sighed at this point, a little disheartened. I thought the race was over. But I am not as brave as these F/S guys. Ismail went first. He ignited the firestorm of Sandburg racers rallying. He opened up and just started hammering kids, passing five or six kids throughout the next half mile and working his way into third. Ismail, with four years of year round commitment, will be one of our all-time best runners. I can tell that now—he has that competitive bravery. He feeds off of those moments. After Ismail took off, Tommy Siczkowski and Alex Miller paired up and decided to start chipping away. As we entered the third mile, I made one conclusion: we were out-toughing the field. We were being brave. Having watched Tommy train for a couple years and seeing him race a couple times in junior high, and knowing the Siczkowski name, I was excited to get Tommy on the team this year. But I had no idea. Every race, I question in my head, “When is Tommy going to drop off?” But he never does. He is competing in every moment of every race. He doesn’t stop. We talk about that all the time but it’s a rare thing to actually see. I see Tommy do it in every race. He’s so resilient. And the way Miller and Tommy worked together is exactly how I want every team to work together in every situation from workouts to the state championship: they made each other work harder. They didn’t make each other comfortable. It was the exact opposite. Miller has had a phenomenal sophomore year. He had some ups and downs last spring and we wanted to work on his emotional discipline this year—to stay in problem solving mode and to have strong conversations with himself. Monday evening was a perfect representation of how emotionally and mentally strong Miller has become. He got out hard—really fast. Then he was passed by a bunch of runners. Here was his test. What would his reaction be? What would the conversation be in his head? I don’t know what he told himself and what went on in his mind, but I do know what I saw: a tenacious problem solving, ever-believing, poised and unbreakable racer. He is powerful now. Ahmed Alhayek: we mentioned some guys on Monday and one guy that had one of the races of the day who deserves huge accolades is Ahmed. Along with the moves up front, Ahmed went right behind, passing small groupings of runners. In the final 1.5, every minute that passed Ahmed was one place further up. It seemed that we didn’t just have one guy sticking his neck out there—we were feeding off each other’s courage at this point. The crowd got louder, the intensity raised. And we kept feeding off of each other. Ismail, Tommy and Alex hooking up and battling it out. Ahmed rolling solo, passing and seeing the closeness of the battle. And: TJ Cosler. I will remember his race as long as I live. Seeing what was going on in front of him with the team battle, hearing from the coaches and the varsity that the scoring was going to come down to his ability to dig deep and be our fifth scorer, Cosler was suffering in the final mile but kept his eyes on the four Lockport jerseys ahead of him. His decision to be brave at that moment and go all in, dig up the hill, open up down the hill, to keep chipping away. Passed two Lockport guys. Breathing fire, legs telling him he can’t do it, his mind perhaps contemplating alternatives, he kept making the decision to be brave. Around the turn, one more Lockport jersey. Into the final 400 meters, we had three guys squaring off with one Lockport guy for the 3rd position. If they make that move or if a Stagg kid outkicks Lockport’s fifth, then it would come down to Cosler v. this single Lockport guy. They fought side by side around the final two turns and were dead even with less than 100 meters to go. Everyone could tell how much Cosler was hurting at that point. He made the decision one more time than the Lockport kid was willing to. He saw what his team needed of him. He refused to break. And that was it: he flat out refused to be beaten. And the Lockport kid broke instead and Cosler made that final pass. No one on earth can convince that there was any other reason—not a training program, not natural ability, not coaching, nothing—other than TJ Cosler’s character that won that race in the end. His teammates inspired him to get the first three Lockport guys—his teammates racing and the varsity screaming at him. Those last two minutes? That was all his heart and soul. Ian McGrath got it rolling early and injected some energy into the group. He kept his head in it and Diego Hernandez had his best race of the season, eventually battling his way up to Ian. Jacob Coleman committed to the early going and also never gave up. Carson Bruce was right with him, moving up throughout the race and grinding through the rolling hills. Sean Kirby broke 20:00 for the first time ever in his last race. Andrew Rohan had yet another PR. What a sophomore year he’s had! Gavin Burns ran yet another PR and broke 19:00 once again. Guys, with Gavin’s new PR at 18:53, he has now just cut his race time in half from his first race last August! Yes, he’s dropped almost 18:00 in one year! I expect that same improvement from him next year. (jk). In swampy wet conditions on a rolling hilly course, with delays and postponements and race course changes, we managed to put our best performances together. Can you tell I am excited about that race? We didn’t win. I’ve always said my reactions to races are hardly based on the outcome. The outcome is often a manifestation of the process of racing, but I don't get all excited when we win and get angry when we lose. I get excited when I see champion character. I honestly, truly could not care less that Lockport edged us by one point. I am so proud and so impressed and so excited about this group and that race because of the character we displayed in it. That was inspiring. We did better than win. We deserved it.

Cohesion: We had it in the races. Guys like Miller-Sieczkowski, Giblins, our pack of freshmen, and even when we weren't physically running together, we were feeding off of each other. The sophomore race had the best example I've seen of that in a while. The varsity is doing it more and more. Previously when we'd see one of our guys moving, we'd drop back, but now we are responding. That's cohesion. Additionally, we've taken on a lot of new people this year and they have become enormous parts of our team identity. And most of all, we care about our team. The guys who were out on the race course on Monday didn't have to be, they wanted to be. We know that we could have an individual national champion and that he'd be a result of the team cohesion. We need to continue to build on that. It's what makes us great.

We know that there are lots of things that get attention in our world. Most of those things are undeserving of that attention. I'm excited and proud of the crowd we get on Friday nights at football games. I also know when people are getting dressed up, drones are coming out, twitter is blowing up, we have gone into the heart of the school where no one is at to talk about racing the next day. These are not races that are going to get a lot of attention. But attention is not the reason we do it. Attention is not needed for our motivation. We have heart. And it is our heart that we make stronger on a daily basis. It's not a muscle that you can show off. It's not going to get any attention on the beach. But we all know it's the most important muscle we have. It sustains us. It provides us with our soul of life. And that is what true character is: it's heart. It doesn't need fans. It doesn't need pads and helmets to look big and tough. It's bare: shorts, some spikes, and our raw desire. It shows up and works. It is where we find our strength. We don't need to see it. We feel it. We know it. In a world of short cuts. In a world of instant everything. In a world of constant attention, you guys have done something that has no short cuts, that takes time to build, and all while building character and strength in a place no one will physically see—your hearts. That's something I believe in.

NEWS AND NOTES

IHSA Regional @Midlothian Meadows

65 degrees, sunny, calm

COACH'S COMMENTS:

After a truly exciting SWSC meet, this one was a little less energizing. We were super pumped to put together a lineup of young guys—six F/S guys and a junior. Sammy Rodriguez was truly excited to get back into racing after a little lay off. He blasted out from the start which cost him a little in his first race in several weeks and in the heat. I loved the aggression and I believe that will pay off in the end. With the rust kicked off, I am confident he'll be ready to roll. I was encouraged by his boldness. The rest of our front group faded in the second mile and didn't respond to the competition. Our two freshmen, Griffin Lehnhardt and Tommy Sieczkowski along with Alex Miller ran well in their first IHSA championship event. I love the way these guys work and compete. Without question, Saturday was revealing for how tough we are going to be for the next few years. We were, however, a little unprepared to really compete with fire. I realized that this was 100% my fault. I was very frustrated with myself. We had too many distractions from a unfocused workout on Tuesday to uncertainty with who was healthy to an unclear race plan. This was all my fault. I should have been more adaptable. I can tell you that we will be ready to rip this coming Saturday. We need to focus on a good, strong, focused week of practice and build momentum and synergy within the group. We will fix that this week. I know that when we are powerful going to the starting line, we are unbeatable. If we race the way we did in Peoria and at SWSC, I know we will hammer people this weekend and we will be ready to finish top 2 in Sectionals. We are on a mission. When we run to inspire, we are powerful. We will be powerful this weekend.

CROWD SUPPORT: Need to rally crowd support and organize!

TIDBITS: >> Buca Di Beppo on Friday, 6:00. $15/person. >>ALL 12 GUYS NEED TO BE READY TO RACE NEXT SATURDAY. THAT MEANS LITTLE THINGS (BRING UNIFORM/SPIKES) AND BIG THINGS (MENTALLY READY TO RIP AND STEP IN).

WHAT'S NEXT: IHSA Sectional at Katherine Legge Memorial Park, Hinsdale.

"I was giving up. I would have given up--if a voice hadn't made itself heard in my heart. The voice said, "I will not die. I refuse it. I will make it through this nightmare. I will beat the odds, as great as they are. I have survived so far, miraculously. Now I will turn miracle in routine. The amazing will be seen every day. I will put in all the hard work necessary...I discovered at that moment that I have a fierce will to live...Some of us give up on life with only a resigned sigh. Others fight a little, then lose hope. Still others--and I am one of those--never give up. We fight and fight and fight. We fight no matter the cost of battle, the losses we take, the improbability of success. We fight to the very end. It's not a question of courage. It's something constitutional, an inability to let go..."

--Life of Pi, Yann Martel

NEWS AND NOTES

RUNNER OF THE WEEK: TEAM

IHSA Sectional @Katherine Legge Park, Hinsdale
Saturday, Oct. 28, 2017
40 degrees, overcast, some wind

COACH'S COMMENTS:

We managed to qualify for state for the 15th year in a row. It was a tight race, down to the wire. Our goal was to stick five guys into the top 35 which would have locked up a qualifier but we slipped late in the race and became vulnerable. Fortunately for us, Plainfield South, who beat us at Peoria Notre Dame, didn't get their 4/5 runners in until the 40s as well and we managed to get through to another week. We had some really, really strong races. Without question, the opening of the race was exciting. I saw the mentality of people who were totally disrespecting the competition. Rankings didn't matter. We went right to the front. All seven guys were out rolling and taking it to people. Robbie Sieczkowski, most notably, was out with Dylan and hammering the front line in 2nd/ 4th place through 800 and in the front line at the mile. Robbie is always bold and always believing. I loved watching him compete. We want aggression again next week, slightly less, but still totally aggressive-minded. The Detweiller course will play more into that race plan than KLM as well. Robbie's progress has been a highlight of the season. He is running with confidence and hunger. He's looking fearless. As he was being passed, Robbie decided to make the very difficult choice of competing and fighting in the final mile. He had been passed by 18 guys at that point, but then refused to give another inch. I'm sure in that process he got passed, then Robbie passed someone back and the competing was relentless for five minutes. He had to have the frame of mind to stay aggressive, stay positive, take the negative feedback of pain and the other runners passing and have a conversation with himself and problem solve. That is real toughness. Dylan Jacobs looked strong and smooth out there and executed well from 1.5 to 2 miles, essentially ending the race and not allowing Kilrea to get back into it. Certainly Danny will know that his best bet next week will be to commit to the pace early next week and hope he can hang around long enough to put in a mid to late race move. So it won't be as easy, but Dylan will keep focused on Dylan's execution which will result in keeping Kilrea against the ropes and eventually break him. One thing for sure: Dylan was the only one ready to win on Saturday. Nico Calderon committed to the strong position early as well. We just need to follow it through and own the pace and position at this point to avoid giving back almost 10 positions in a mile. Nico put together a strong race and there is even more in the tank for Detweiller. He was a reliable, stable force for us in the midst of this chaotic race. Ben Giblin came through with the race of the day. His toughness has been so impressive this season. He gets better every week. He saved our rear ends in this race. I loved his final 100 meters—totally gutting it out, digging deep, flying up that hill and passing a few guys. One of those guys was a Lyons kid, so that final push was a two point swing right there. We have to have that in the final 800 next week. Xander Furmanek was going good for 2 miles and then checked out a little. We needed that final few minutes of competing to keep that race where we belonged—we lost the DGS right there and we were in position to beat HC but went the wrong way. Xander has had a great season and we are going to need him to get back to fighting that final mile like he did in both Peoria meets. Fortunately, he has done that on that course multiple times and I know he's going to do it again on Saturday. We wanted to see what Eddie Slack had in him on Saturday and wanted to find that out in the sectional rather than the state meet. He has clearly progressed significantly and it's a relief to see his allergy has been figured out. Throughout the past ten days, Eddie has only gotten stronger. Saturday was the best he's looked all season, rolling really good through more than half of the race. I guarantee he will feel even better this Saturday after we finalize our preparations. We will want a slightly more conservative opening for him next Saturday and for all of us to be more attentive to detail prior to the race—make sure the inhaler is taken effectively, make sure we aren't scrambling for spikes or uniforms or arm sleeves in the final hour. All of us need to do a better job of this. Finally, Sammy Rodriguez put his heart and soul into the race and had a physical collapse. All throughout his post race health concerns and even after his trip to the hospital, all he wanted to know was if we qualified as a team. Sammy is all heart. And it took a lot of heart for you guys to qualify. We knew it would be extremely tight and it was indeed. You guys beat a team that beat you when we raced them in Peoria a month ago. You had to fight for it. It wasn't perfect and it never is.

Just to give you an idea of where we are at with a little more conviction mid race and a little more fight at the end of the race: Our 4th runner came in 32nd place, which is not an all-time best performance for Nico or any of our guys. Lyons, who is ranked 4th in state, had their 5th in 37th place. Hinsdale Central, currently ranked 6th, had their 5th in 36th place. Downers South, who was 4th in sectionals, had their 5th in 43rd place. It's pretty clear outside of Downers North, no one is out of our reach right now. We just need to decide that we are hungry in the last mile. When we commit to an early aggressive position, we can't just hand it back to people because we aren't confident enough that we truly belong there. See it through. Convince yourself of where you belong. Obviously, placing 5th in the sectional, as good as our sectional was, means that no one will have any expectations for us on Saturday. We will not be talked about as a trophy contender or even a top 5 contender. But none of this matters. We can go there and run fearless and simply just go for it...one last time.
